D. WORK IN PROGRESS

Empathy Reconsidered: Psychoanalytic Investigations into Theoretical and Clinical Uses of Empathy. This is a book manuscript for which I have a contract to publish with Routledge. Anticipated publication date 2021.

Completed article, submitted to the Journal of Community & Applied Social Psychology. Title: "Neoliberalism, shame and stigma: Psychosocial barriers of food insecure individuals to receiving charity food assistance"

As an active member of the Community Assistance Research (<http://www.udallas.edu/care/>), I will be continuing to conduct research and co-author papers at the intersections of food insecurity and mental health.

6. SERVICE

A. Service to the University

(2019, May). I gave a guest lecture to Dr. Amy Fisher-Smith's Ethics II graduate class.

(2018, fall—Present). Member of the Constantin Curriculum Committee

(2018, spring—Present). Member of the Constantin-Braniff Committee on Academic Discipline

(2017—Present). UD Ford Foundation Scholarship Advisor. Member of the Counseling for Post-Graduate Committee.

(2016—Present). UD Workplace Climate Committee member. Meeting participant. In 2016, leader of a focus group comprised of UD staff.

(2019, January). I gave a lecture for the Philosophy Colloquium series entitled "On the Lacanian Subject".

(2018, November). I gave a guest lecture in Dr. Jason Lewallen's "French Thought After 1945" course on the subject of a psychoanalytic interpretation of Michael Haneke's film Caché.

(2018, November). I coordinated a talk to the undergraduate population given by Dr. Bruce Fink entitled "Why People Aren't What They Seem to Be, or What Freud Teaches Us About Repression." Dr. Fink is a Professor Emeritus at Duquesne University, a practicing psychoanalyst, a translator of Jacques Lacan's works into English, and had published numerous books in the area of Lacanian psychoanalysis.

(2018, January). I coordinated a talk to the undergraduate population given by Kiersten Rapstine, LPC-S, a licensed professional counselor who is the director of clinical services at the Renfrew Center (an outpatient eating disorders treatment center). The talk was on eating disorders.

(2014 – Present). I founded a monthly Jacques Lacan study group in October of 2014. We meet at the University of Dallas, and a number of faculty participate as do members of the community. For the 2014-2015 academic year, we read and discussed Lacan's tenth seminar on Anxiety. For the 2015-2016 academic year, we read the first half of Lacan's Écrits, whereas for the 2016-2017 academic year we read the second half. From 2017-2019, we studied Lacan's 5th Seminar, which is about the formations of the unconscious.

(2017, April). I gave a talk to the UD Psychology Club entitled, "I Love you to Death: Putting Together the Pieces of Ambivalence OR Love and Zombies."

(2017 – Present). Evaluate clinical position papers, which are part of the comprehensive examinations for students in our master’s program pursuing a “clinical concentration.”

(2016, November). I worked with Julie Janik, Director of Career Services, to bring clinical psychologist Derek Hook, who has authored three books, to UD to speak to the community and to the Lacan Study Group. Dr. Hook spoke to the UD community about post-apartheid racism in South Africa and he spoke to the Lacan Study Group about Lacan’s “The Instance of the Letter.”

(2016, April). I worked with Julie Janik, Director of Career Services, to bring a local psychologist, Christopher Poulson, who works for the Federal Bureau of Prisons, to speak to the UD community about his experience volunteering in Liberia on the Monrovia Medical Unit via the Commissioned Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service.

(2016, February). I worked with Julie Janik, Director of Career Services, to bring San Francisco clinical psychologist, psychoanalyst, and author of 5 books Raul Moncayo, Ph.D. to the UD community to give two talks. The first was on psychoanalysis and Buddhism and was intended primarily for undergraduates. The second was a commentary on Lacan’s “The Subversion of the Subject and the Dialectic of Desire” and it was given to the Lacan Study Group.

(2015, Fall semester). As part of the Introduction to Counseling Techniques graduate course, students will give psychoeducational talks on a variety of issues (e.g., self-harm, substance abuse, depression, etc.) to the UD community.

(2015, May through August). Met with Drs. Gilbert Garza and Amy Fischer-Smith to write both the Psychology Graduate Handbook and the Psychology Graduate Practicum Handbook. We also decided on some changes for our graduate psychology website.

(2015, May). Organized, with the help of Julie Janik and Career Services, and assisted in the preparation for a career services and psychoeducational presentation to the UD undergraduate community on social anxiety. We got an outside speaker, Dr. Jaya Mathew, to speak at the event, and I helped two psychology graduate students put together presentations.

(2015, April). Organized and participated in a psychology faculty panel for psychology undergraduates in which we spoke about and answered questions concerning graduate school and career opportunities and preparation in psychology.

(2014 – Present). Evaluate comprehensive examinations of students in our master’s program.

(2014, February). Guest lecturer on empathy for Biopsychology course taught by Dr. Steven Slaughter.

(Fall 2013 - present). Wrote letters of recommendation for psychology students.

Swales, S. (2013, February). A Lacanian psychoanalytic interpretation of Freud’s case of Little Hans. Paper presented at the University of Dallas psychology department, Dallas, TX.
